Promoting LGBTI Rights Abroad: A conversation with Special Envoy Berry

Time: 12:00pm - 1:00pm

Location: Gittis 213, Kushner Classroom

Hear the U.S. State Department's Special Envoy for the Human Rights of LGBTI Persons, Randy Berry, speak about how the U.S. can promote human rights overseas.

While in many nations the LGBTI rights movement has made incredible progress, in many others advancement towards LGBTI equality has been slow, nonexistent, or in some cases the rights of LGBTI persons has deteriorated. What is the status of LGBTI rights globally? What role can the United States play in promoting LGBTI rights internationally? How can the United States work to promote human rights overseas?

Randy W. Berry is the U.S. State Department's first-ever Special Envoy for the Human Rights of LGBTI Persons and is a leading international LGBTI rights figure.
