What's New in Terrorism Risk Analysis and Homeland Security

Time: 4:30pm - 6:00pm

Location: Jon Huntsman Hall, room G50, 3730 Walnut Street

This seminar is part of the Penn Program on Regulation Risk Regulation Seminar series. Dr. Detlof von Winterfeldt, Professor, Daniel J. Epstein Dept. of Industrial & Systems Engineering, Professor of Public Policy and Management at University of Southern California will be presenting.

Detlof von Winterfeldt is a Professor in the Daniel J. Epstein Department of Industrial and Systems Engineering of the Viterbi School of Engineering and a Professor of Public Policy and Management at the Price School of Public Policy at the University of Southern California (USC). From 2009 to 2012 he was on a leave of absence from USC as the Director of the International Institute for Applied Systems Analysis (IIASA) in Laxenburg, Austria. Concurrently with his term at IIASA, he was a Centennial Professor of Management Science at the London School of Economics and Political Science. In 2003 he co-founded the National Center for Risk and Economic Analysis of Terrorism Events (CREATE), the first university-based center of excellence funded by the US Department of Homeland Security, serving as CREATE's director until 2008. Throughout his academic career he has been active in teaching, research, university administration, and consulting. He has taught courses in statistics, decision analysis, risk analysis, systems analysis, research design, and behavioral decision research. His research interests are in the foundation and practice of decision and risk analysis as applied to the areas of technology development, environmental risks, natural hazards and terrorism.
