

February 15, 2017

How to Achieve Excellence in Today's Regulatory Environment

Time: 4:30pm - 6:00pm

Location: Golkin 100, Michael A. Fitts Auditorium

Regulation finds itself in the middle of fierce political controversy in the United States and around the world. In the UK, the Brexit vote in part reflected local public antipathy toward European Union regulations. In the United States, the new occupant of the White House has vowed to cut regulation by 75 percent, taking particular aim at health, financial, and environmental regulation. Clearly the spotlight on regulators and the regulatory process today shines brighter than ever, raising key questions about the future of regulatory policy and of what defines "quality" for a regulatory system. What can leaders do to improve the efficacy and legitimacy of government regulation? How should they balance conflicting public demands such as between controlling risk and promoting innovation? How does government ensure it operates with the utmost integrity and maximizes the delivery of public value? This panel discussion brings together key experts who have contributed to the new book, Achieving Regulatory Excellence, edited by Cary Coglianese, the director of the Penn Program on Regulation, the Edward B. Shils Professor of Law at the University of Pennsylvania, and the faculty advisor to RegBlog.

Moderator

Cary Coglianese

University of Pennsylvania Law School

Panelists

Jim Ellis

President & CEO, Alberta Energy Regulator

Howard Kunreuther

James G. Dinan Professor of Decision Sciences and Business and Public Policy,
Wharton School

Adam Finkel

Executive Director & Senior Fellow, Penn Program on Regulation

Shelley Metzenbaum

Senior Fellow, Volcker Alliance

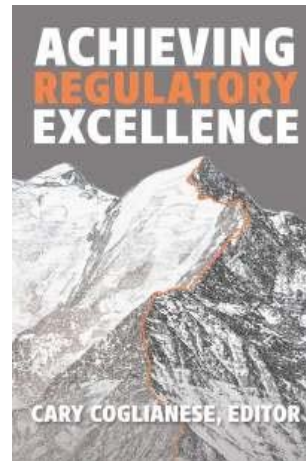

Commentator

John J. Dilulio, Jr.

Political Science Department and Robert A. Fox Leadership Program,
University of Pennsylvania

Register for this event

Attendees*:

Contact Info:

Will Standish

wstandis@law.upenn.edu