

Webinar: Reimagining Legal Technology - Reimagining the Future of the Profession (A Virtual Summer Event Series)

Time: 3:00pm

This session will explore the expansion of legal technology over the last decade, the ways the global pandemic has accelerated both the proliferation and adoption of new technology, how the role of lawyers across systems could change, how legal tech should integrate with consumer legal services and court systems and how law schools should be responding to ensure lawyers of the future are well-prepared to navigate these challenges and emerge as leaders in a new landscape.

Penn Law's new Future of the Profession Initiative ("FPI") aims to lead interdisciplinary and forward-focused conversation about the dynamic forces at play throughout the profession. Certainly this year has accelerated many of those changes and offers the opportunity to infuse new experience into this rapidly shifting conversation. This summer, FPI will host "Reimagining the Profession," a three-session series of virtual events. Each event will focus on a particular area of the legal profession and will explore how the current landscape is impacting that area—both during this volatile time and beyond.
