

September 15, 2020

A New Era of Equality: Redefining Leadership through a Lens of Allyship

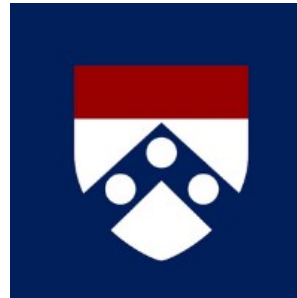

Time: 12:00pm

A discussion about the future direction of inclusion in the workforce and how the next generation will shape the future of work.

Our program will begin with an opening keynote session which will welcome prominent voices in legal education to discuss the rise of research around allyship and how it is redefining the future of leadership in the legal industry.

The second part of the program will feature a discussion on a 'first of its kind', ground-breaking research collaboration between Thomson Reuters and University of Pennsylvania's Carey Law School. Members of the research group will present their findings from a study conducted on the perceptions of men from Generation Z around gender equality and allyship. They will also share stories from the portrait narratives being produced on survey respondents. This session will also feature distinguished leaders who will provide their thoughts on the survey, what the results reveal about the future direction of inclusion in the workforce and how the next generation will shape the future of work.

RVSP today!

Penn Resources for Students

Contact Info:

Register here.