CIRCLING THE ARCTIC: Security and the Rule of Law in a Changing North

Climate Change is affecting the entire planet, but it is the Arctic that is experiencing some of its most rapid and dramatic effects. A changing Arctic climate and landscape have security, economic, and geopolitical impacts that present significant challenges and opportunities. As the U.S. Department of Defense wrote in its June 2019 Arctic Strategy, it is imperative “to quickly identify threats in the Arctic, respond promptly and effectively to those threats, and shape the security environment to mitigate the prospect of those threats in the future.”

These public keynotes, part of a larger closed-session conference presented by the Center for Ethics and the Rule of Law (CERL), Annenberg Public Policy Center (APPC), and the Polar Institute at the Wilson Center, will bring together top-tier experts to discuss the needed changes and actions that will address the security challenges and threats arising from Climate Change’s effect on the Arctic.

THIS EVENT is being held on Thursday October 1st AND Saturday, October 3rd. Please see which sessions you would like to attend and choose accordingly!
