University of Pennsylvania Virtual Event

The University of Pennsylvania's Center for Technology, Innovation and Competition (CTIC) and Warren Center for Network & Data Sciences are pleased to announce their new initiative on "The Economics of Digital Services." Thanks to the generosity of the John S. and James L. Knight Foundation, this initiative will provide grants to support new research into the impact of data and algorithms and innovative business models on digital platforms.

CTIC and the Warren Center are delighted to bring together a distinguished panel of experts to commemorate the launch of this new endeavor. They will offer their perspectives on the type of research scholars and enforcement officials need to support good policymaking in this area.
